

EMMA PETERS

LJWL MEMORIES

I will never forget the class period of American Writers II with Dr. Martin when we discussed the short story "Sonny's Blues" by James Baldwin. The quote which states, "He was Sonny's witness that deep water and drowning were not the same thing", was one I had written down in my notes app during NSO my freshman year because Dr. Martin had said it on one of the panels. It was a very surreal moment to remember all that has changed throughout the years since then, and to reflect on the role these literature classes had played in my time at Point Loma.

WHAT'S NEXT

I'm planning on hopefully working at a non-profit while I apply for grad school in the fall!

HOPE FOR THE FUTURE

I hope that I can maintain the strong connections I have made in this department and use what I have learned in this major for whatever career path I end up in.

Literature, B.A.

Humanities Honors,
Honors Scholar