

LJWL MEMORIES

A core memory I had with the LJWL department is visiting San Clemente Island with Breeann Kirby and other Environmental Studies students. We stayed in these little old cabins by the beach and learned a bunch about the plants and animals there. It was so neat and such a unique experience. I never thought I'd be able to go to San Clemente Island since it's a private military base! My favorite memory from that trip would have to be flashlight hunting for foxes. I remember we were driving in a truck, the sky was filled with stars, and as we were driving I saw this beautiful owl perched on a wooden post. It was beautiful. Never had I seen one up close like that. There were also these sweet little burrowing owls walking around on the ground. I felt so lucky to see them.

WHAT'S NEXT

After graduation, I am going to be an Outreach Assistant at I Love A Clean San Diego. I hope to adventure and travel to national parks whenever I can catch a break. :) Next on the list is Rocky Mountains!

HOPE FOR THE FUTURE

I hope to be in a local government position for my career. I also hope to intentionally allocate time to do things I love such as camping and being out in nature. Most importantly, I hope to exude the love that I've experienced from Jesus to those around me. He comes first, always.
